PEACE DECLARED

Government officials reveal radical new response to violent 'terror' threats...

By Chad Membreth
Staff Writer

(TRI-CITIES, UFR) Pantarctican government officials today announced a radical new change to their policy of "dealing with terrorists"—namely 'Peace.'

"We never dared try it before, but obviously our current paradigm of reaction just isn't working because these terrible events continue to occur," stated the Pantarctican Council in an on-line letter published today and read aloud in the council chamber, to much applause from "both sides of the aisle." Though critics are calling it a "shameful waste of good bullets," their numbers are growing less and less with each passing moment.

And authorities from leading 'peace tanks' agree that soon, all will live in harmony and mutual respect.

"Whereas it has been observed that 'violence begets violence,'" read aloud Councilor Threshold, an entity representing Galiformia, "We know that we too have done wrong, and claim responsibility for what our actions have begotten. We open up our hearts in repentance and also in rejoicing, and we lay down our weapons in sacrifice to a 'greater goal' which we believe is possible to achieve in our lifetimes—together."

"We hereby and here-toforeafter choose consciously to eschew violence, fear, secrecy and 'greater security' as appropriate measures in response to the so-called 'violent' acts perpetrated by those who dwell in desperation, who feel that their voices are not heard, and that any ordinary actions they might take will not be effective vehicles of change and actualization. For the pain which one feels becomes all too readily the pain we all feel. But the same can be true for 'Peace,' and because of this we cannot rest until Peace reigns."

The Council agreed unanimously that a "change of direction" is drastically needed.

And a measure was taken up to radically open government decision-making procedures and to undergo a complete accounting, review and overhaul of all official and de facto policies currently in operational deployment in our federation's many glorious fronts and

DREAD-BASED ACTIVISTS DEMAND RECOMPENSE

(PANTARCTICA) Sherrie Arnath, a noted Quatrian "Dread-Based Activist" is demanding compensation from the new "Peaceist" government. She says the livelihood of her and her friends has been undermined by the new policy changes. And now that there is technically no 'illegal' avenue open to her, she's taking her fight to the courts.

"Terrorism used to mean something," Ms. Arnath said in her deposition before the Ascended Masters Council of the Western Technocratic Alliance.

"But now we're just categorized by the government algorithms as 'Activism: Dread-Based'"

"That's only one step above mimes, who are categorized as 'Activism: Dream-Based,'" Ms. Arnath lamented.

"We're talking about mimes, people! This is simply inhuman!"

Though her deposition was dutifully recorded by the mechanisms of the emergent intelligent patterns of the Magisterium, it was as though her voice fell on deaf ears in the otherwise empty audience chamber.

"This is simply inhuman!"

"Damn you and your efficiency!" she shouted, with a 'one-finger salute,' pulling the trigger on a home-made blomb strapped to her abdomen, which tragically failed to explode because it had been secretly re-rigged by a team of WTA automated 'peace engineers' while Ms. Arnath was 'in the toilet.'

"It just goes to show you can't really trust anyone anymore," Ms. Arnath was quoted as saying.

Luckily, government algorithms agreed that it was indeed "unfair" and agreed to pay Ms. Arnath's hotel and travel expenses, as well as a per-diem for the duration of her duress.

STRIKE SHUTS DOWN ELVEN COLA PLANT

(EAST QUATRIA) The famous "Memlen: Elven Cola"® plant was shut down yesterday by a general worker's strike, which supporters suggest will be of unlimited duration, and which has Tri-Cities importers 'worried sick' over continued supply of the delicious refreshing elven beverage we have all come to know and love.

"We are tired of being mistreated," intoned a solemn letter posted last week to EntityNet by the Elven Workers' Council.

"All power to the cooperatives!"

"We do all the work, and ZANTA1000 takes all the profits. Until all earnings are distributed equally among all workers, the Memlen will cease to flow. All power to the cooperatives!"

A spokes-entity for ZANTA1000 confirmed closure of the plant, but refused to comment on the allegations leveled by the EWC.

The matter is currently being reviewed by a panel of impartial metadivinities employed as arbitrators by the Universal Free Realms who hope to resolve the matter in time for YMAS.

STRAW TRANSFORMATION ONLY 'TEMPORARY'

(OTHERSPACE) Local upstanding citizen, developer, and thought-leader the Honorable Dean Hammer recently lost a "gentleman's bet" with a minor metadivinity, resulting in his private school being turned to straw in the wee hours of Marshmalloween.

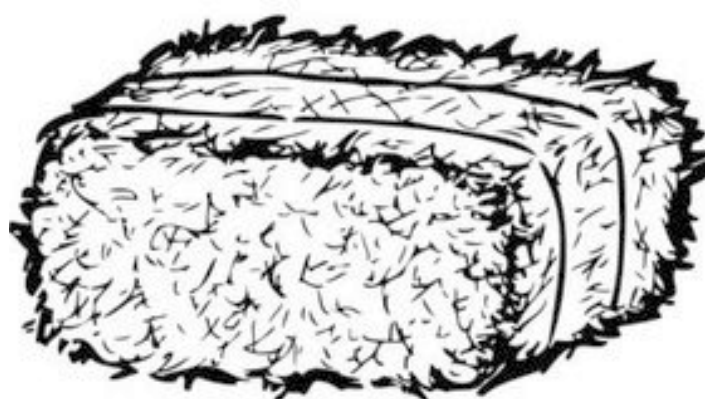

of an ML-3020 up at the school - Inexperienced Use of the Black Book," said Det. Wayne Chipper of the Department of Eldritch Affairs, "But the Dean's nothing if not experienced. He had things well in hand. He's a real solid guy, and if you can't trust the Dean, who can you trust?"

This year's Uncanny Detective's Ball will be held on the Dean's luxurious estate, complete with a troupe of specially trained performing acrobats from Tijuana being flown in by the Dean.

The transformation included students, faculty, and servants, becoming "straw men" for a short time.

"We had a report venues of on-going conflict, both internal and external.

"We can't go on like this," said an anonymous entity interviewed practically in tears outside the Tri-Cities' Secure Shopping Compound. Other shoppers, standing nearby, fell to their knees wailing, some forming quasi-spontaneous "prayer circles," trembling with the great feelings of 'Peace' welling up suddenly in their hearts.

"Today we're opening the hood on the mechanisms of governance," announced Councilor Yestrayon of Pharamaday Solutions Benefits District. "Everyone is welcome to 'come by the garage,' have a complimentary 'beer' or non-alcoholic 'soft drink' with us, to pick this whole tangled mess apart, find out what makes it all 'tick' and to engage with us and—most importantly—with one another, openly and honestly to find the most true, the most right and the most 'just' means of moving forward which leaves no entity feeling so alienated, fearful and powerless that they feel they must succumb to violence."

A free community 'spaghetti supper' will be offered each evening for all participants until Peace has descended permanently to dwell upon the land.

Dick Greid's Show-Business Burrito Hut also offered a limited-time "dollar-off" coupon to commemorate this momentous change in direction for our troubled society.

(GULCH HEIGHTS) In a lively lecture given here last night Dr. Albert Farechild displayed color specimens for the gath- ered men. Dr. Farechild didn't utter a single word during his presentation which was much to the delight of the men. He methodically revealed swaths of carpeting, til- ing, auto-mobile surfac- ing. While many of the men retired to the pot- luck whilst Dr. Farechild administered his stir- ring presentation, a rous- ing applause was heard around the town when he displayed the dull sil- ver surface. Word was soon spread about the region for all to know, in which much cheering and jubilation continued into the night. His dull silver surface is promised to be an item that all citizens will one day have one item com-posed of its constituents. It is hoped by the businessmen that every good citizen own at least one item cov- ered in dull silver.

FIRST LADY GIVES
'GIFT OF WHITE'

(TRI-CITIES) No matter what Father Climate Change decides the weath- er will be like this hollanday season, former First Lady Alarua Busch has dedicated herself to making this year a WHITE YMAS for the Tri-Cities homeless popula- tion. Through a generous donation from the extend- ed Busch family, homeless shelters and illegal encamp- ments all across the region will soon find them- selves blanketed in 80,000 pounds of artificial snow. Not a single cot or park bench will go un- decorated.

"I love the simplic- ity of it," Mrs. Busch said Monday as she led reporters on a tour designed to give the The Tri-Cities Gadgette its only look at the elaborate dec- orations gracing the cities' poverty centers. It is well known that since leaving office, the Busch family have spent their time giving back to the community which they spent so may years basically dis- mantling.

With crystal snowflakes and silvery icicles covering 600 'eggshell' polymer trees throughout the St. Oliver Ben- edict Trismustus Shelter For The Desitute And For- gotten, Alarua has quadruple-downed on the YMAS monochromatic white decor this year, a look that Mrs. Busch said she chose for its el- egance. The spec- tacle is overpower- ing; for instance, it takes this reporter 15 minutes just to traverse the rising dunes of white arti- ficial powder in the Hindersight Gym- nasium Facility in order to get a cup of complimentary polystyrene coffee. But yet, in these moments of silence and reflection, one cannot help but be overcome by the beautiful patterns of glistening plas- tic 'snow' winding beneath the indus- trial folding tables stacked with end- less cans of donat- ed pumpkin pie mix. "I just want- ed to give back in my own small way," Alarua continues "...because, no mat- ter your situation, there isn't a soul in the Existosphere" for Compaq Presario 1550's. And he was carrying a locket. Inside the small necklace authorities found a tiny picture of a young man holding a pet mongoose. It is the only real clue to Mick Pfischer's former life. Mr. Pfischer said he doesn't know who he is or when he was born. Or how he got to 'Paris of the West.' Or whether he even wants to know. But today, the millennial man is scheduled to be discharged from the hospital. So where would a man without an identity... go?

Luck be as it may, today a local tech startup reached out to the Mt. Diablo Medical Pavilion where Mr. Pfischer is currently being evaluated and has agreed to take the young man under their wing while he can recover from his amnesiac episode. While Mick Pfischer attempts to reclaim his identity and get back on his two feet, the startup Mendium plans on exploiting his skills with early 1990's computer technology and will be thusly positioning him to be their new social media mastermind. In between tweefs and Fussbook posts, Mr. Pfischer will also be the lead manager handling their official T-shirt Bribe Department. This wing of Mendium is responsible for engaging in new forms of 'gift economy,' specifically exchanging free "schwag" as a means to cover up otherwise embarrassing scandals. (Readers of the Tri-Cities Gadgette may remember a story from Spring of 2014 in which Mendium "blacklist" misconduct was uncovered by rival/partner company Early Clues, LLC).

For now, Mr. Pfischer says he's happy in his new home. "I get to sleep on the couch next to the Memlen Cola machine" shrugs Pfischer, "and with all of these couch surfers that constantly show up to take overnight residence at the Mendium offices, I can truly say that I'm never lonely. I just hope that someone is taking good care of that mongoose."

Down at the Broken Compass Housing Clinic, one will find Alarua's crowning achievement, a traditional gingerbread house / edible artwork made up of nearly 85 tons of raw Soylet. The model depicts the pristine architecture of the Busch family plantation. Pastry chef Reginald Sagundo said his creation took nine Bourthian months to build, would be on display for shelter residents for another three weeks to tantalize their gnawing hunger pangs and would then be demolished. "It will gather so much dust, I don't think we can give it to somebody to eat," Sagundo said, laughing.

All Tri-Cities Shelters will temporarily be closed while invited VIP guests to the Busches' 22 parties come feign amusement at the decorative achievements. Unlike residents, guests will not go hungry, but will feast on salamandar crudites and seasonal duri-an fruit laid out on a table watched over by current shelter residents dressed as carolers.

REPORTED CANARDIAN EVACUATION FORCES PORTAL CLOSURE

Researchers have confirmed to the Tri-Cities Gadgette that indeed, a recent #CometCon2014 spectacle has 'excited' the 'networks' and has thus made our portals especially "live" right now.

Keys adds: "Cometcon

2014 vibrated at such highpsy [sic] frequencies that the Dogpeople of planet Canardia had 2 [sic] evacuate." The Portal Authority have refused multiple requests for comment, but Portal Border Patrol speaking anonymously have confirmed that thou-

FROG N' TOAD PIZZA PUB SUPERSTORE SHARES RISE ON SALES GROWTH

(TRI-CITIES) Shares of Frog n' Toad Pizza Pub Superstore (FNT) rose in trading Throsday after the retail chain reported fifth-quarter Pantarctican sales growth that topped Gimgle analyst expectations.

Frog n' Toad shares were up nearly 214% at S$32.7543 in morning trading, reversing course from a pre-market drop.

The Bogota, Alabama-based company, buying North Spording waffle and tire chain Holden Holden in an S$11 deal expected to create the Existosphere's eighth-largest retail outlet, said same-store Branspace 5x21R sales rose 3.6%, the best showing in two years.

The result surpassed the 2.5% growth forecast by financial analysts.

Frog n' Toad Chairman and CEO Colonel Chuck Buxley (ret.) credited the sales increase in part to the reintroduction of popular off-the-shelf item The Five Vengeful Spirits of Gornak the Half Dead during the July-September quarter, along with continued popularity of the Incomparable Wiggle Stick and the introduction of the Queen of the Gypsy Moth themed "Toe Counter for Parents."

The company reported pan-Branar same-store sales also rose 24%. That topped the 2.1% forecast by Gimgle Analysts.

Operating costs and expenses totaled S$284.32.5 million for the quarter, up from S$19.6.34 million from last year. The decline was driven in part by expenses related to the Holden Holden transaction.

The planned acquisition represents a so-called "Conceptual Inversion inversion," a transaction in which a Pantarctican firm reincorporates in a lower-tax reality in a bid to reduce its future taxes, then re-reincorporates in a reality parallel to that one. A wave of Conceptual Inversion inversion plans this year prompted the elimination of recent Department of the Treasury rules designed to do whatever, because who cares?

However, Frog n' Toad CEO Chuck Buxley focused on the positives of the Holden Holden deal, saying in a statement issued with the earnings report that the transaction would create "a new Liminal leader in the Industry of Things."

"We built on our momentum in the fifth quarter as we delivered some of our strongest sales levels in recent years and continued growing our Branar footprint," said Buxley.

ASSOCIATED BOXES REVEALS NEW STANDARD

(W. QUATRIA) When asked this Wednesday last, Jennings Peters of the firm Associated Boxes how he saw the current economic climate, he responded with an enthusiastic retort of "Why should I care -- for I cannot see". He continued and elaborated on his well-received notion among those gathered in the meeting hall, "If I cannot see, then why should I care?" Again, among those assembled stirred into a frenzy of jolliness and back pats. Peters opined on the returns our city's men would expect to receive in the coming 5th quarter. He stated that the boxing industry is doing quite well and concerns over the showrooms are unfounded. Peters went on to reveal a new standard in which proud and distinguished franchises would very soon adopt the cardboard box and discard the traditional wooden crate as "only so much fire-wood".

The lumberjacks in attendance were none too pleased. For their saws and hatchets were now rendered "useless" as noted lumberjack, Byron Miller announced amid the din. Miller was soundly confronted by the city's businessmen and dispatched. Boxes, Peters concluded was where the future lied. The event was concluded with a festive dance among the men.

'IN YOUR DREAMS'

"Big Data" invading liminal spaces? You better believe it - says Jeff Gand, CEO of TransTopia Corporation, who last night revealed exciting new in-dream merchandising mechanisms to millions of unwitting participants of his company's over-arching vision to "Control Everything For Profit."

Lucky users will now have the option to "Buy It Now," whenever they see, feel, hear, think, or smell anything anywhere - whether it's a dream or not, says Gand.

"We've essentially taken OpenQNL technology and closed it," Gand beams. "There is no opt-out."

While this functionality violates UFR Standard Protocols, TransTopian holdings are technically outside of UFR jurisdiction, and Gand has never been one to "follow the rules."

"That's for weaklings," Gand states proudly. "We're partnering with DarkSeid Technologies to bring about an abrupt end to the bureaucratic UFR hand-wringing that stands in the way of true progress and profits."

VISITORS EXPLORE ROCK COMPUTING MUSEUM

(LAKE RIVER, TRI-CITIES) Out-of-towners from near and far visited the Historic Rock Computing Museum this week. Rock Computing continues to gain interest with the general public, as “users” seek out more artisinal forms of calculation.

Vic Piscator from Galiformia arrived with his large extended family, including sisters Peggy, Ramona, Running Heavy Turtle, and Ron.

They were especially eager to visit the Slate Rock Room to “see how things got done.”

Hector Gomez and family from Coloblanco stopped in ontheircross-country trip in their entirely simulated R.V. They were excited to touch the rocks, which they felt were surprisingly “real.”

Meanwhile, local character Elnora Fleischmütze and her peppy Peekapoops returned to “do their duty” in the yard outside the museum, and ended up provoking an instantiation of Galtros! Her perky pups have surely learned their lesson this time.

BOOK REVIEW

“Schrodinger’s Ex-Boss”

A novel by Roger-Peter Wildhelmet
Strange Animal Publications

Matt Schrodinger is a man with a problem. For starters, his ex-boss still owes him money. But it’s not quite so simple as that in this taut psychological thriller that at times reads like a forgotten Chekhov stage play.

A confirmed Relaxafarian, Schrodinger knows that if he calls his ex-boss on the phone to discuss the matter, they will have an unpleasant argument. And if he doesn’t call his ex-boss, his ex-boss may very well end up pocketing the money, saying “Well, you never called!”

Without giving away any “spoilers,” Schrodinger decides to invoke his ‘Right to Arbitration’ guaranteed under the Standard Protocols of the Universal Free Realms. What happens next is a topsy-turvy take on truth-telling in an age of “quantum uncertainty” - all centered around the peculiar symbol of a frozen pig’s heart!

While this reviewer, for one, found some of the characters portrayed in “Schrodinger’s Ex-Boss” obnoxious and egotistical, and the story a bit drawn-out, the pay-off in the end was “well worth it.” We can safely say that this is one of the finest works of ‘bureaucratic fiction’ that has come across our desk this year.

“Schrodinger’s Ex-Boss” will be available on WhisperNet for Linux this QMAS-Eve from Strange Animal Publications.
